About

The ocean covers 71% of Earth's surface playing an integral role in the planet's systems from a climate and weather perspective, while producing more than 50% of the oxygen we breathe. Its depths sustain human life above the water by providing 20% of the animal protein in the human diet and being responsible for supplying fresh water to the whole planet by forming the clouds that transport fresh water to land. However, my intention is not to write an essay to reveal why oceans are crucial in our survival. My intention is to use art as a visual medium to create awareness, to view art as an agent of analysis, critique and radical change and to highlight the relationship between our past actions and its consequences.

All the materials used in the sculptural installation series presented in this portfolio are upcycled materials, which were collected from the Irish coast as part of my ongoing collaboration with the environmental group Clean Cost Organization. The Clean Coasts programme works with communities to help protect and care for Ireland's waterways, coastline, seas, ocean and marine life. I volunteered to several clean-up actions in 2019 from where I collected a variety of marine debris, ranging from small plastic residue to derelict fishing gear.
